GIGANTIC PICNIC AT ROSS' GROVE

The Swiss Independence Day is to be observed in an enthusiastic manner in this city.

A meeting was held in Allegheny last night

by representatives of the various societies

that are to take part in the demonstration for the purpose of making arrangements for the day's festivities, It was organized by the election of A. Jenny as President; Arnold Schneider, Vice President; Julius Roshard, Secretary; Dagobert Deucher. Treasurer. The other members of the committee are Blaser Gottfried, Alex Schurch, Adolph

Luder, A. J. Simon, Robert Lenhart and

The committee is composed entirely of the descendants of those who 600 years ago

signed the document that bound together

the three Swiss cantons, thus forming an independent union of a beautiful and inter-

try. Allegheny county is full of these people. It is estimated that 10,000 Swiss descendants are residents of this State.

And it is fully expected that fron 2,000 to 3,000 of them will be identified with the August 1 is the day upon which the anniversary of the signing of the Swiss

Declaration of Independence occurred, but it is being observed generally throughout the world during the whole of the present month. The day fixed for the local demonstration is August 31. The "Verein der Soehne Winkelrieds," "Schweizer Maen-nerchor Helvetia," "Schweitzer Bund,"

and the "Section des Nord-Amerikanischen Gruetlibunds," are the four leading so-cieties that will participate in celebrating the day that is so dear to all the descendants of William Tell.

VISIONS FROM THE ALPS.

The numbers will be greatly augmented by representatives from almost every German benevolent associations in Allegheny county, together with other societies from Johnstown, Wheeling, Braddock, McKeesport and other points in Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia.

The programme has only been partially arranged. This much has been decided on: There will be a parade in the morning over the principal streets of Pittsburg and Allegheny, many of the participants being decked with costumes such as the original Swiss wore, not too original, perhaps, but of a sufficiently modern time to allow such a garb to be donned with dignity and security. After the parade special trains will convey the people out the West Penn road to Ross' Grove. Here the festivities proper will be held. They will consist principally of speeches and sports. It will be a large sized picnic, "a is Suisse," and the committee in charge has undertaken to make the day one that will make glad the hearts of those who participate.

will make glad the hearts of those who participate.

Speeches will be made in German by Dagobert Deucher, Rev. U. Hangartner, Mr. Max Schamberg and others. Mayors Gourley and Wyman will be invited and probably one or the other will deliver an English address. Mr. Deucher, who is to deliver the principal address of the day, is a full cousin of a present member of the Swiss Bundesrath or Executive Cabinet.

The sports will be the most interesting and novel features of the day. They will consist of Swiss wrestling, stone-lifting and stone-throwing and shooting. The latter pastime will be indulged in by the use of crossbows similar to the one with which William Tell is popularly supposed to have poked a hole in Gessler's hat and other feats of more or less difficulty in those days before people bothered themselves about natural gas bills or high and low tariffs, will be introduced.

taken without arriving at an amicable agree-ment. The workmen this year had intro-duced a clause reducing the time in which a "move" shall be made to four and one-half instead of five hours.

The manufacturers objected, on general principles, because about every other year or so this same clause had provided for a reduction in time until a turk must now be made in five hours, while it formerly required six. The inquest in the cases of Kartik Balent, Stephen Dobak and Andrew Zidik, the three men killed by the falling of smoke stacks and the collapse of a new iron building at the Elba Iron Works July 29, was concluded yesterday and the verdict created a great surprise, involving, as it did, the responsibility for the accident.

case was taken on the day after the accident, while a number of the wounded men were yet unable to appear and testify. On this account and the sickness of Coroner McDowell the case was continued until yesterday. The testimony, a condensed report of which is herewith published, is very contradictory, showing that the employes 6 o'clock.

President Smith left last night for Philadelphia, where a conference is to be held today. The other members of the Conference Committee left for their respective homes. The settlement of this dispute places the fint workers in a better position than either the window or green bottle workers.

A MODEL SHOWN IN EVIDENCE, Messrs. Riter & Conley, in order to make matters clear, produced a tin model of the structure they had been erecting. It showed how the building was erected and secured, and the plates and fastenings, and that it was substantial enough for all ordinary pur-

William M. Simmons, a bridge builder, also testified that the stack fell first and caused the building to fall.

William Meyers and Christ Rodgers, both bridge builders, also testified to the security of the building, and that the accident was caused by the stack.

After some further testimony the inquest closed, and the jury rendered its verdict.

The jury after finding that the men came to their deaths by the accidents, further found "that the said building falling was due to said stacks not being supported by guy lines properly and a far causing them to fall upon said building as they were top heavy, and further find that there was gross negligence on the part of said Elba Iron Works car employees in not properly securing said stacks; and we recommend more care and caution must now be made in five hours, while it formerly required six.

The directors of the new United States Glass Company held a meeting yesterday during the noon jeecss and unanimously decided that the Executive Committee should not accept the proposition of the men to make another reduction of half an hour. D. C. Ripley was seen after this meeting, when he made the following very significant statement: "Our company has everything in readiness to begin operations with the next fire, but I would not be surprised not to see a factory start. We will not operate if the men insist upon the adoption of the four and one-half hour clause."

When the conference committees met in the afternoon it looked very much as if the two sides would lock horns and fail to settle the matter. The meeting lasted until after 6 o'clock. Most of the testimony in this important and the plates and fastenings, and that it was substantial enough for all ordinary purposes.

Among the witnesses present yesterday was Joseph P. Farrell. He was a laborer at the iron works. On the day of the accident he said he knew something and wanted to tell it. He said he had been told to get out of town, but refused to do so. He also went to the office of a newspaper and had himself interviewed. He was subpceased at the inquest at his own request, but when the time came he did not appear. The Coroner issued a process for him and he was arrested and brought in yesterday. When placed on the stand he immediately proceeded to retract all he had said. He said he knew nothing, and did not know why he had talked as he had. He was closely questioned, and it was made apparent that he knew nothing. Coroner McDowell then gave him a severe reprimand for talking too much and sent him home.

John Saeger, an engineer at the Elba Iron Works, was placed on the stand. He did not see the building fall. He noticed that the fourth truss of the building was out of plumb and leaned toward Second avenue. The stacks were inside the trusses. He was at his engine when the crash came. He said he saw some men at a line attached to the truss pulling at it.

Philip Sutton, also an engineer at the iron works, testified to having seen a line put on the truss. He heard the crash and ran out of the building. The fourth truss had fallen and caused the fourth stack to fall. It brought the other stacks, and the building, he thought, fell before the stacks.

William Bros, a machinist at the iron works, testified to having seen men pulling on a girder, then the building and stacks fell. He was afraid to go in the building the day before as he had not thought it safe.

George Lemon said the farthest stack fell first and the others followed. Ioorhead Bro. & Co. Would Not Walt or Moorhead Bro. & Co. secured a preliminary njunction vesterday to restrain their em ployes who are now on strike from interfering with those at work. A hearing will be had Saturday before Judge Stowe. The former employes of the firm ridicule the idea of an injunction, as they have not been near the mill since the strike occurred. Of the 56 puddlers on strike there are only six or eight of them idle, the remainder are working in the mill at Bennett station or elsewhere. One of the working at the pork house mill-in Woods' Run since the Sharpsburg mill has been closed down and says he can prove he has not been in the neighborhood of the mill. The citizens of Sharpsburg have been commenting all along upon the quiet and gentlemanly manner in which the strikers have conducted themselves.

Another heating furnace was started in the mill yesterday and it looks as if Mr. Moorhead would carry into effect his threat to operate his plant with non-union men. President Weihe, of the Amalgamated Association, was at Canonsburg yesterday setting a local dispute. The officials have oloyes who are now on strike from interfer-

THE FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS.

PROTESTING AGAINST BELGIAN BLOCK

Breezy Sketches of the Bappenings in the Tw Great Cities.

The tragic death of Henry N. Deihl, the police officer who put a bullet through his head on First avenue Tuesday evening, was almost the sole topic of conversation in police circles yesterday, and many new deails were brought to light. What the dead officer meant in his final letter when he said "I hope Annie will kill you both," was the subject of considerable speculation until the full text of his last words were examined. Several paragraphs of the letter were omitted in the newspaper reports, for the reason that another name was involved. "Aunie," of course, was Mrs. Deihl; but who could be included with Maggie Edgar in the word "both." In that portion of the letter which was omitted Deihl explained that he had frequently passed 'Mary" money to take Maggie's place at the Roth restaurant while she was absent with him. "Mary," it develops, was the girl who accompanied the Edgar girl to the olice station after the fatal shot was fired. Her name is Mary McVickers, and, while much older than Maggie Edgar, was her e-pecial friend and companion. An investigation proved that she was paid by Deilil at the rate of 50 cents a night to take Maggie's place at the restaurant, while the pretty tittle waitress and the officer made visits to a place in Allegheny.

HER DEATH WAS REQUESTED. The McVickers woman had made her home with Edgar, at 174 First avenue, and she has been very familiar with the affairs of Defa! and Miss Edgar. Why the officer should express the wish, in his dying statement, that his wife would kill the Me-sintement, that his wife would kill the Me-vickers woman can only be a matter of con-ecture, though Inspector McAlesse does not peak of her in the most complimetary terms in connection with the tragedy.

Mrs. Deihl did not recover from the terri-lie shock yesterday, remaining for hours in a semi-conscious condition. Great sym-eathy was expressed for her on every hand resterday, and her many excellent qualities were frequently referred to. It is denied by her triends that she had attempted to put into execution the threat upon her life, re-locatedly made.

The rent had not been paid and there was no money for their support. The chief final-ly promised her that if Inspector McAleese ald recommend that he bereinstated that nother trial would be given him. On account of his excellent record as an officer and the condition of his family the Inspec-or advised that he be reinstated, which was done.

The remains of the dead officer will be taken to his old home at Irwin, Pa., for burial this afternoon, leaving the Union station at 1 o'clock. Inspector McAleese has detailed the following officers to act as pall bearers, accommanying the remains to Irwin. Albert Teeters, Micheal Conneily, Andr Scott, Brady Thompson, A Mannion and George Boyd. The officers will report in fall uniform at headquarters at 12 o'clock and proceed immediately to the house on Washington street.

At the inquest yesterday nothing new was developed in the case. A verdict of suicide was rendered, and the remains were removed from the Morgue to the dead officer s The Coroner ordered the release of Maggie Edgar, and yesterday afternoon she was seen promeuading Smithfield street in com-juny with a girl of about her own age. She painted out by people who lined the side-walks.

The following special was received from Irwin station last night: "Officer Henry N. Deilhe, of Pittsburg, suicide, was a native of this city, where he was favorably known. His father and sister are prominent in M. E. Church circles, and are estimable people. His mother died some four years ago.

E. M. Quimby to Take Charge of William E. Schmertz's Affairs. The final assignment of William E. Schmertz was made yesterday to his son-inhaw, E. M. Mr. Quimby delined to talk on the subject yesterday, excusing himself by the statement that he is cusing himself by the statement that he is not fully informed on Mr. Schmertz's affairs, and until he secures proper information he will not talk. He is acting entirely under the advice of Autorney Willis A. McCook.

The deed of assignment fited yesterday does not give a schedule of personal property. There are but two pieces of real estate. One is iot No. 405 in Colonel Wood's plan of Pittsburg, fronting on Fifth avenue west of Wood street. The other is a lot on Craft avenue, near Niagara street.

Anyone can readily understand this if they stop to consider. No doubt Mr. Weihe would make a competent head for the fire department, but it is not likely that I would appoint a Democrat to such an important position. I am a Republican, and you may rest assured that the next Chief of the Fire Department will be a Republican. I will not, as I stated to The Disparton yesterday, name the new fire chief until after the return of Chief Evans from Springfield, and probably not until my return from the Harrisburg convention, for which Heave on Monday. When I do name the new fire chief I will also appoint his subordinates, and define their duties and the duties of the officers of the department. All of this may take a week."

DEFIED THE POLICE. George Orttman Commits Suicide to Escape a Trip to the Station House, George Orttman was very successful last night in his deflance of the police officials, but he could not keep out of official circles entirely, and got under the care of Coroner McDowell. It was a plain case of one quart of whiskey, one razor and one suicide. Ortt-man did not work yesterday, and, in order ropat in the time purchased a quart of red rye. He soon got around all but the bottle, and then began to raise a disturbance in the vicinity of his home in Miller's Row in the Thirty-fifth ward. It was about 8 o'clock when he saw Officer William Tanney ap-proaching. Ortiman declared that he would when he saw Officer William Tanney approaching. Ortiman declared that he would not be taken alive, and rushed into the house where he secured a razor and cut his throat from ear to ear, severing the windpipe and external vessels.

The troop is raised in three counties, Blair, Huntingdon and Center, and has four armories. The most the men can accomplish is squad drill, and it is only on occasions of this kind that the command can be brought together for tactical evolutions. Captain Jones kept his men out for an hour after the review and gave them a little work over the ground. The troops charged twice in good style to the admiration and applause of the spectators. Battery B also had a crack at drill, but the infantry were dismissed to quarters, the last to go in being the Tenth. Colonel Hankins got on his horse and seemed irresolute as to whether to give his lads a turn or not.

REVIEWED THE GUARD. The Second Brigade Passes in Column Before the Governor.

THE EXECUTIVE RETURNS HOME AGAIN

The Second Brigade of the State Guards

in came at Arnold's station did itself proud yesterday. So said its Commander, Brigadier General Wiley, its reviewing officer of the day, Governor Pattison, and so universally agreed the cohort of admirers

which congregated without the lines to witness the business of the day. It was the Governor's day, and the review of the brigade which His Excellency held was accomplished most successfully satisfactorily, as he warm, and the rain precipitated over night

had subsided, leaving the ground dry, and, condition. The review over, the Governor and his staff embarked at 7 o'clock on board

a special train for Pittsburg, whence the journey to Harrisburg was continued on the fast line at 8:10 o'clock. The Governor spent nearly four days in camp. Summed up in a phrase, his opinion of the Second Brigade is that it compares more than favorably with the other two he has visited. Quite a number of Pittburgers called on the Governor during the day, and fully 1,000 people visited the soldier boys in their quarters.

ment in an informal and irregular manner, desired him to form his regiment at once. He simply addressed the Adjutant as "Reese," and that officer was unaware be was being spoken to officially. The more so as that if Colonel Hunsicker had orders from headquarters to impart to the Eighteenth Regiment, he should have addressed himself to the Colonel, in his absence to the Lieutenant Colonel, and failing the chiefs to the Adjutant. Colonel Hunsicker afterwards accused the Adjutant of the Eighteenth of using anofficial language, a charge which his comrades deny he used. The general impression is that the aide de camp was too hasty and unaware of the regulations.

Colonel A. D. Seeley was staff officer of the day, and so efficient and courteous was he in the discharge of his duty at division headquarters as to storm the hearts of a numerous bevy of ladies who adorned the Governor's quarters. In recognition of the Colonel's good qualities they tendered him a little surprise, and made him blush again by hanging a chaplet of medals, 14 or 16 in number, around his neck. The genial Colonel is officer of the day until next encampment.

VISITORS AT THE CAMP. Among the visitors to the camp yesterday were Mrs. Dr. Wiley, Miss Carrie Wiley, and "The Daughter of the Regiment," as the "The Daughter of the Regiment," as the Eighteenth's Surgeon Major's little girl is called; ex-Sheriff J. Pittsburg Belles Not in Favor of Tights or the Divided Skirt-Dressmakers Have No Call for Them-Hints to the Reformers. The excitement over woman's dress reeform, that is now in progress at Chautaurua, does not seem to have reached Pittsourg in any other form than newspaper discussion. The people of this city do not ake kindly to startling innovations.

take kindly to startling innovations. Especially is this true of women's dress. Mrs. Parker and her followers may talk about the divided skirt and silk tights, but our dainty Pittsburg women do not care for them. They prefer to array themselves in the soft, clinging garments that have always been in vogue, and to leave the bold departures in costume to strong-minded females and those who are willing to follow blindly any leader, no matter where the trail may end.

Colonel Rutledge, dismounting, advanced to where the officers had assembled in front, and in a neat speech presented the licuterant with a handsomely finished dress sword of regulation pattern. Licutenant Bigger was too much taken by surprise to acknowledge the attention and Captain W. Davis, of Company C, responded for him in very appropriate terms.

Promptly at 4 o'clock, the time set in orders, the six regiments of infantry, Battery B, and the troop of cavalry had massed in line in brigade formation. The regimental bands, headed by the brigade band, were stationed on the right flank. The picket lines were stationed at about onethird distance on the ground from the camplines, and on the rising ground apposite, or the railroad side, a goodly number of spectators had assembled to witness the proceedings. At 4 o'clock sharp, with military punctuality, the Governor and his staff moved from the division headquarters and took up a position at the base of the rising ground alluded to. Some little time was here lost on account of an oversight on the part of the Commander. When the Governor and his staff had taken their positions at the reviewing point nswered: "What do women dress for?" answered:

"What do women dress for?"

As she evidently waited for a response, the reporter gave it in the shape of a mystified shake of the head.

"Well, I'll:tell you," went on the dressmaker. "She dresses to please her male friends and relatives—her husband or lover more than anyone else. She knows that a plain divided skirt and severe waist would not suit them. They like her to look pretty, although a woman's beauty does not depend upon her costume, the way in which she is dressed has a great deal to do with her prepossessing appearance. When the dress reformers have hit upon something that is really prettier than the present style of dress, we may expect to see it generally adopted. In the meantime, I and other dressmakers will find ourselves getting up the same sort of garment for our customers that we have hitherto." the regiments were already in the field, in light marching order, and in brigade front formation. The customary manevuer of presenting the brigade to the Governor was presenting the brigade to the Governor was performed, and the command for close order given. Next came the command "Prepare to pass in review; companies, right wheel," and executed. This brought the brigade into companies front, prepared to march in company front formation past the reviewing point. At this point it was discovered that General Wiley had been guilty of a very serious oversight in not allowing the Governor and his staff to troop the line, a ceremony invariable in reviews. The regiments were then once more brought into brigade front, and the evolutions gone through with again.

that we have hitherto."

Another dressmaker, on the Pittsburg side, said that she had never been asked to make one of the new-fangled dresses. She had many customers among the belies of the East End, and perhaps one-fourth of them were cyclists or wanted to be such. They had sometimes laughingly asked her whether she could not make them a divided shirt that would be convenient for riding his staff cantered down to the right of the line.

The brigade band struck up a quickstep and the reviewing officer with his staff passed along the line, returning along the rear. Coming up on the right flank again, the Governor mounted on "Sleepy Frank," Major McCandless' steed, led the pace at such a rate that his staff made a very considerable tail, only pulling up at the reviewing point some moments after the Governor had taken up his position. The march past followed. The brigade band led, playing a quickstep, followed by the regimental fife and drum corps. The Tenth, with the gallant and soldierly Colonel Hawkins at its head, led the column, and no regiment on the ground beat the Tenth, either in point of equipment, appearance or in skirt that would be convenient for riding the wheel, but the proposition had never be-marching. The Fitteenth followed, and the general appearance of this regiment would have been better if its last company had donned the regulation leggins. The Eighteenth came next, fully equipped of good physique, and marching well, dividing with the Tenth the honors for all round merit. Following came the Fifth, with but one staff officer, its Colonel, riding at the head, the rest being distributed along the line. The regiment was well equipped. The First Company of the Sixteenth Regiment left its leggins indoors, and the Fourteenth following made a capital showing, the boys marching well, in good alignment and steadily. This regiment was the only one that entirely dispensed with the leggins, and for that reason looked just a little ragged.

HOW THE BATTERIES WORKED. The Commissioners Want East Diamon Street Paved with Asphalt. County Commissioner Weir called at City Hail yesterday afternoon to have an inter-view with Chief Bigelow relative to the paving of Diamond street between Grant and Ross streets, but Mr. Bigelow being out of the city the meeting will have to be post-poned until his return.

The County Commissioners have paved Ross street with asphalt and desire Diamond street paved with the same material. Ross and the contract has already been awarded for a block-stone pavement, although the work has not yet commenced.

"We hope to persuade Mr. Bigelow to change the contract to asphalt for Diamond street," said Mr. Weir yesterday, "because of the noise made by the rolling of wagons over the block-stone pavement. We paved Ross street with asphalt so the noise would not annoy the Criminal Court rooms, and the same consideration demands that Diamond street be paved so that the Orphans' Court and the Coroner's Court shall not be annoyed. Asphalt will be much cleaner also and will lessen the annoyance from dust, We believe Mr. Bigelow will grant us the change."

The idea is to carry the teams of wholesale dealers and others to Sharpsburg and thus save much time otherwise lost by teamsters being compelled to continually pull out of the way of the cable cars. It now takes nearly a day's time to drive to one of the suburbs and return whereas it could formerly be done in half the time. This has greatly delayed business of all kind and started the idea of utilizing the river.

A DISPATCH representative yesterday visited a number of the principal modistes of the two cities, to find out whether the divided skirt was being worn generally in Pitsburg. One dressmaker in Allegheny, who does a large business among the rich women of the city, said:

"I cannot answer for other dressmakers, but I know that I do not make any dresses of that pattern. In all my experience I have had only one order for a new-fangled, divided skirt dress. The purchaser of that particular dress got it only as an experiment, I suppose, for she never had another, and she is one of my regular customers, too, who spends a great deal of money on her clothes in the course of a year."

"Why does not the divided skirt become popular, if it is as comfortable as dress reformers say?" asked the reporter.

The dressmaker smilled knowingly as she answered:

Governor Pattison, when the review was over, shook hads with General Wiley and then returned with the staff to division headquarters, while the brigade commander filed off in the opposite direction with his staff.

From this until 6:30 o'clock the Governor was engaged in conversing with friends and in taking iuncheon preparatory to leaving for Harrisburg. During a few minutes conversation the Governor expressed himself as being well pleased with the surroundings of the Second Brigade.

"The brigade compares," he said, "very favorably with the others and has made a very favorable showing, indeed. The efficiency of the guard is improving year by year, and the work done during my presence in camp is such as is calculated to improve its efficiency still further. PLEASED WITH THE GROUND. The Governor thought the parade ground an excellent one, and could see no reason why anyone should find fault with it. He thought it one of the best he had yet visited. Previous to the review the Governor, with his staff, made an inspection of each regimental quarters. The only absentee from the staff, it was remarked, was Lieutenant Colonel James R.
